Programme Rationale

The Certificate in Intellectual Property Law is designed for trainee patent attorneys. It is a one-semester course offering concentration on many of the practical aspects of patents, designs and trade marks and greater involvement of patent practitioners to complement the academic treatment of the subject matter.

Educational Aims of the Programme

The Programme aims to:

- Provide students with a sound understanding of the essential principles of law providing a foundation and context for intellectual property law and practice;
- Equip students with the skills of legal analysis essential for practice as an intellectual property professional;
- Provide students with a detailed understanding of the laws and procedures (UK and Community) relating to the protection of industrial design through registered and unregistered design laws and copyright;
- Provide students with a detailed understanding of the laws and procedures relating to the protection of trade marks (domestic, international and comparative);

- Provide students with a detailed understanding of the laws and procedures relating to the protection of patents (domestic, international and comparative);
- Provide students with a sound understanding of competition law (particularly those areas of competition law with relevance to the exercise of intellectual property rights).

Learning Outcomes

The programme provides opportunities for students to develop and demonstrate knowledge and understanding, skills and other attributes in the following areas. The programme outcomes are referenced to the relevant QAA benchmark statement(s) (see above) and the Framework for Higher Education Qualifications in England, Wales and Northern Ireland (2008), and relate to the typical student. Additionally, the SEEC Credit Level Descriptors for Further and Higher Education 2003 and Queen Mary Statement of Graduate Attributes have been used as a guiding framework for curriculum design.

Practical skills - able to:
D 1	read legal writing (statutes, cases and commentary) effectively.

Teaching, Learning and Assessment Strategies

This Programme is delivered via lectures and seminars throughout the first semester of the academic year. Most teaching takes place in a whole-group setting. Teaching and learning methods vary from module to module. In some sessions, teaching is conducted in interactive lecture format. In others, teaching is conducted through group discussion of pre-assigned questions and problems. Each module is supported by a detailed and clearly structured set of materials and reading list. These materials include guided learning exercises which the students are required to complete in advance of the teaching sessions. Students have the opportunity to submit written solutions to legal problem questions and receive feedback on these submissions. The delivery of each module is supported by a Blackboard area containing essential module information, module outlines and questions for self-study.

Each module is be organised and convened by a subject expert from within the Centre for Commercial Law Studies at Queen Mary and also includes a number of classes run by experienced practitioners in the relevant field. Such practitioners include patent attorneys, barristers, and solicitors. The contribution of such practitioners is an important element of this professional programme. CCLS is uniquely well-placed to deliver a programme integrating professional expertise in this way as a result of the extensive contacts that it has built up with senior intellectual property practitioners over the years (both through the Certificate in Intellectual Property Law and other programmes and through its research activities).

Programme structure

The Programme extends over a semester of full-time study ("the semester of study") and candidates for the award must study the following component modules:

- Basic Principles of English Law, Practice & Evidence
- Competition Law
- Trade Mark Law
- Copyright and Designs Law
- Patent Law

Each component module requires a student to undertake approved studies to the value of 15 credits, with the exception of Basic Principles of English Law, Practice & Evidence, which is a two-week pre-sessional study only module.

Assessment and Award

Assessment takes the form of an unseen examination in each of the four modules carrying 15 credits. The duration of the unseen examinations is 3 hours 15 minutes in Trade Mark Law, Patent Law, Competition Law and Designs and Copyright Law. Additionally, in both Patent Law and Trade Mark Law, students take a further unseen examination of 2 hours duration. A candidate's marks for the 3 hour 15 minutes and 2 hour examination papers in each module are added together and then divided by two to provide an overall mark for each module. A candidate's classification for the programme as a whole is therefore determined on the basis of marks in 4 assessed modules (Patent Law, Trade Mark Law, Copyright and Designs Law and Competition Law) and candidates must also achieve a pass mark in Basic Principles of English Law, Evidence and Practice. The examinations are taken at the beginning of Semester 2 of the academic year.

Assessment on a pass/fail basis for the pre-sessional study only module in the Basic Principles of English Law, Practice & Evidence is by multiple choice question examination of 1 hour 45 minutes duration at the end of the two-week pre-sessional course. Candidates initially failing to reach the required standard in the first Basic Principles of English Law, Practice & Evidence examination are permitted to proceed to the modules in the Programme carrying credit value and then undertake re-sit examinations in Basic Principles of English Law, Practice & Evidence as second and subsequent attempts as they continue with the academic Programme as a whole during the first semester of the academic year.

An assessment method based on unseen examination has been chosen in order to ensure a rigorous assessment of the students' knowledge and skills in each of the subjects. This is an assessment method that has traditionally been employed on the Certificate in Intellectual Property Law Programme and is particularly attractive to the professional bodies accrediting the programme for the purpose of professional qualification. Students on the Programme are provided with suitable preparation for assessment by this method.

Matters of final assessment, student progression and the making of the award for the programme fall within the responsibility of the Subject Examination Board ("SEB"). The SEB is chaired by a senior member of staff at the CCLS. In addition to the Chair, the Programme Director, each of the Leaders for the Programme's modules and the programme's two external examiners will be members of the SEB. The decisions of the SEB will be taken in accordance with the relevant academic regulations.

Assessment is by written examination in each component module to which credits are attached, and by multiple choice examination for the study only module in Basic Principles of English Law, Practice & Evidence.

The examinations take place early in the semester following the semester of study, except for the pass/fail examination for the study only module in Basic Principles of English Law, Practice & Evidence.

The examinations are taken at the beginning of Semester 2 of the academic year.

The examination board for the Programme may condone a student's failure in one component module of the Programme provided:

- The student's average mark over all taught modules exceeds 50%.
- The mark in the failed module(s) is not below 45%
- There is good performance in the modules that have been passed.

The examination board may make an award with merit to a student who has an average mark of at least 60% over the whole programme and who has achieved marks of 60% or over in at least 3 compulsory modules.

The examination board may make the award with distinction to a student who has an average of at least 70% over the whole Programme and has marks of 70% or over in at least 3 compulsory modules.

Examinations for those candidates presenting themselves for re-assessment will be held during the academic year in which the semester of full-time study falls.

Quality Assurance Mechanism

Include details of: SSLC meetings, student feedback mechanisms, personal tutor arrangements, programme induction, programme review and monitoring.

Termly SSLC meetings are held for students on postgraduate programmes in CCLS. Representatives elected from this Programme attend those meetings. Minutes of those meetings and information concerning the outcome of issues raised at the meetings will be circulated to all students on the Programme.

Students are encouraged to provide informal feedback to Module Leaders and the Programme Director. In addition, confidential student questionnaires are distributed to students on the Programme. These allow students to comment on a wide range of issues concerning the delivery of the Programme and its individual modules. They also seek comments on the effectiveness of external speakers delivering classes within the Programme. The Programme Director analyses, and takes account of, student feedback provided through this mechanism.

The Programme Director acts as academic point of contact for students on the Programme.

During students' first two weeks on the Programme, they receive a comprehensive induction to the academic support available within CCLS and the College more generally (in particular, library and welfare services). The teaching throughout the Programme pays particular attention to the fact that many students have limited prior experience of the system of law and legal studies.

The effectiveness of the Programme is reviewed and monitored by the Postgraduate Teaching and Learning Committee within CCLS. Additionally, issues relating to the Programme will be considered within the specialist committee relating to Development, Intellectual Property and Information Technology Law.

Programme-specific Assessment Regulations (if applicable)

In the case of programmes that deviate / do not comply with the Academic Regulations further information regarding the nature of any difference and/or deviation should be stipulated in detail.

Employers Links

Please provide details of any links with employers e.g.

- Details of advisory panels that include current or potential employers;
- Organisations that regularly employ graduates from this programme and the roles that graduates undertake.
- Student prizes donated by organisations that may offer employment to graduates from this programme.

If there are no links with employers consider the learning outcomes and transferable skills and explain how these might be used to inform employers about the qualities and skills a graduate from this programme might be expected to have.

One of the most notable features of the CCLS is its extremely close relationship with the legal profession and the commercial world. It has an advisory council that includes several senior members of the judiciary and legal profession and persons occupying senior roles in the commercial world. Currently, senior members of the legal and intellectual property professions play important roles on the examination board for the CIPL and the MSc in Management of Intellectual Property. Almost all students on the CIPL Programme are employed as trainee patent attorneys while studying on that Programme. They are supported financially for their period of study. Almost all graduates from the Programme are employed within the profession following their studies. All programmes within CCLS have the benefit of prizes for achievement supported by commercial organisations (eg GlaxoSmithKline for the CIPL and Allen & Overy for the LLM).
