Programme Outline

The study of a modern language and its culture in conjunction with history offers the opportunity to combine two contrasting but complementary areas of interest. Students will follow the core modules specifically designed to help develop language skills. In the first year, students will take a foundation course relating to the German language and culture. After this students are free to select options of special interest. Students will normally spend a year abroad in a country where German is spoken. This may be spent either studying or working, for example as a language assistant. This is a great opportunity for students to improve language skills and experience life in a foreign country. Throughout the programme students will also take modules in history, chosen with assistance from your Adviser. Many students take advantage of the School of History's strength in modern European history.

Aims of the Programme

The programme VR11 History and German as delivered by the Schools of History and School of Languages, Linguistics and Film at Queen Mary University of London aims:

- to provide students with a thorough grounding in key aspects at least one of three broad historical periods: medieval, early modern and modern;
- to impart a high level of linguistic knowledge and skills, both productive and receptive;

Programme Title: History and German

- to provide students with fluent oral ability and written style in both English and German;
- to introduce students to, and encourage them to employ a range of historical and methodological approaches;
- to expose students to political, cultural, religious, social and economic themes as appropriate drawn from the School's strengths in British, European and North American History;
- to give students access to a range of material in the German language that is worthy of study either as a product of the culture concerned or in a broader cultural and intellectual perspective, or both, including material from different media (written and visual) and different genres;
- to encourage and support students to design their own coherent pathway of study drawing from modules offered both within the School of History and by other Schools within the University and in the School of Languages Linguistics and Film;
- to equip students with the generic and transferable skills as defined in the School of History and School of Languages, Linguistics and Film Benchmarks, including self-direction; independence of mind; ability to gather, organise and deploy evidence, data and information; structure, coherence, clarity and fluency, both of oral and written expression in English and in German; intellectual integrity.

What Are the Entry Requirements?

A-levels

Tariff/Grades Requirement: 340 points from three A-levels with an A in History and an A in German if offered, or in another language which is not the applicant's mother tongue if not. No lower than B in any A-level. Excluded subjects: General Studies and Critical Thinking.

Additional information

Applicants whose first language is not English must obtain a grade B in GCSE English Language or equivalent, or will be required to take IELTS and achieve grade 7 overall with grade 7 in writing.

Equivalent overseas qualifications are welcomed.

How Do We Listen and Act on Your Feedback?

The Staff-Student Liaison Committee provides a formal means of communication and discussion between Schools and its students. The committee consists of student representatives from each year in the school/institute together with appropriate representation from staff within the school/institute. It is designed to respond to the needs of students, as well as act as a forum for discussing programme and module developments. Staff-Student Liaison Committees meet regularly throughout the year.

The school operates a Learning and Teaching Committee, or equivalent, which advises the School/Institute Director of Taught Programmes on all matters relating to the delivery of taught programmes at school level including monitoring the application of relevant QM policies and reviewing all proposals for module and programme approval and amendment before submission to Taught Programmes Board. Student views are incorporated in this Committee's work in a number of ways, such as through student membership, or consideration of student surveys.

The School operates an Annual Programme Review of their taught undergraduate and postgraduate provision. The process is normally organised at a School-level basis with the Head of School, or equivalent, responsible for the completion of the school's Annual Programme Reviews. Schools/institutes are required to produce a separate Annual Programme Review for undergraduate programmes and for postgraduate taught programmes using the relevant Undergraduate or Postgraduate Annual Programme Review pro-forma. Students' views are considered in this process through analysis of the NSS and module evaluations.

Academic Support

All students beginning to study on the programme participate in a series of Welcome Week activities, which involve introductions to the programme and specific inductions in the use of the online learning environment. These events also include opportunities for social interaction, and scheduled small group and individual meetings with personal advisers.

Each student's academic progress and personal welfare is monitored by an adviser in each School with whom regular meetings are scheduled. Advisers are the designated members of staff with whom students can raise issues and problems and from whom they can seek advice and guidance.

Programme Title: History and German

All teaching staff hold regular office hours in which students are actively encouraged to discuss their work and their progress.

There is a dedicated Student Experience Manager in the School of History who works with academic staff to assist students in need of support.

Both the Student Experience Manager and all advisers are able to refer students, where appropriate to the relevant professional service departments in the College, including Disability and Dyslexia, Welfare, and Counselling.

A dedicated post of E-Learning Manager supports students in their use of online learning environments used on all modules.

The School of History and the School of Language, Linguistics and Film collaborate with the College's Thinking Writing team and Language learning unit to support students in the development of their writing skills. The School of Languages, Linguistics and Film runs a Writing Support Centre which offers weekly workshops to any students who would like to develop their academic writing further. Additional support is regularly provided by professional writers working in the College as Royal Literary Fund Fellows.

Programme-specific Rules and Facts

Specific Support for Disabled Students

Queen Mary has a central Disability and Dyslexia Service (DDS) that offers support for all students with disabilities, specific learning difficulties and mental health issues. The DDS supports all Queen Mary students: full-time, part-time, undergraduate, postgraduate, UK and international at all campuses and all sites.

Students can access advice, guidance and support in the following areas:

- Finding out if you have a specific learning difficulty like dyslexia
- Applying for funding through the Disabled Students' Allowance (DSA)
- Arranging DSA assessments of need
- Special arrangements in examinations
- Accessing loaned equipment (e.g. digital recorders)
- Specialist one-to-one "study skills" tuition
- Ensuring access to course materials in alternative formats (e.g. Braille)
- Providing educational support workers (e.g. note-takers, readers, library assistants)
- Mentoring support for students with mental health issues and conditions on the autistic spectrum.

Links With Employers, Placement Opportunities and Transferable Skills

Joint honours students who combine history and languages are particularly sought after in business and by government departments. Acquiring a language makes students more employable. Hundreds of companies in the UK and abroad are desperate for language graduates –English is not universally spoken, the boundaries of Europe are constantly expanding, and business grinds to a halt without linguists. History has a reputation as a serious and respected discipline, which develops an understanding of the modern world and valuable research, analytical and communication skills, making history graduates very attractive to employers. Queen Mary History graduates often find employment in areas such as business, education, finance, government and the media. Others continue their studies at postgraduate level, or pursue more directly related careers as academic historians, librarians, archivists or history teachers. Graduates have found work for organisations as diverse as BP, BBC, Mansion House Consulting and Investec.

Programme Title: History and German

Graduates of the programme can expect to have developed:

communication skills, as students are challenged to express themselves in both speech and writing;
presentation skills, as students are asked to introduce seminars, make points clearly and effectively, maintain discussion, and field questions;

be culturally adaptable from study time abroad

reading skills, using a range of approaches to tackle different kinds of texts;

analytical abilities, as students respond to a assess their underlying agendas and meanings;

writing abilities, through preparing a range of assignments (including reports, learning journals, and research essays);
research skills, locating, sifting and interpreting a range of sources (from printed books to electronic journals);

time management skills and the ability to work under pressure, as students organise and fulfill extensive reading commitments and written assessments;

team-working skills, as students participate with peers in seminars and group research presentations;

communication skills, as students are challenged to express themselves both in speech and writing;

presentations skills, as students are asked to introduce seminars, make points clearly and effectively, maintain discussion, and field questions;

Every year the School sees a number of students progress to take higher degrees, both at Queen Mary and elsewhere.
